Sales Performance Predictions for 2004

Thank you for purchasing Madame Ming's Online Auction Calendar for 2004. This calendar represents trends and probabilities for the coming year. Madame Ming is a Master Astrologer and successful long-term seller on eBay.com and Amazon.com, with over 25 years of business experience.

Madame Ming's Online Auction Calendar is not intended as a personal astrological reading, but rather, is an interpretation of the energies and influences during the next year as they will effect the businesses that operate on the world wide web.

To best make use of it, it is important to read ahead in the monthly reviews to be ready to benefit from the peaks. Energy is shown by the number of red bars for each day. You will see that there is an ebb and flow to the energy. Taking advantage of that timing can make a difference in your success online. For example, if you sell on eBay, list items to close on the days with the highest number of bars in a given period. It isn't necessary to wait for an eight-bar day, sales will occur nearly every day of this year, but some days are definitely better than others. Checking for the next up curve can help you organize your work and know when to list.

Keep in mind that the dips are the best times for other business and personal activities (like vacation time), including restocking, expansion and change in methods of operation and other support activities to improve financial positions in the next upturn.

This information is not confined to eBay or any one site or venue style. It will lend itself to every kind of business online, and we would like to know how it works for you. You can send you feedback to MadameMing@auctionbytes.com

Thank you for subscribing, and we wish you all the best all the time.

Sales Performance Predictions for 2004

Madame Ming has looked at her astrological charts for the year ahead, and has created a calendar guide to online selling for 2004. This calendar includes predictions of future activity, and are in no way meant to be the only basis for business decisions. Madame Ming has provided the calendar as a tool to enhance, reinforce and support personal and business choices and pursuits in a positive and helpful manner, and her predictions are only educated, calculated guesses.

How the Calendar is Generated

The predicted trends in this report are based on Mundane Astrology, education and online experience, known future world events and probable ones, common sense and good business practices. It is designed to provide an overview for businesses of every size and product that utilizes the World Wide Web for generating income. However, if you don't work, it won't work for you. It is designed to support your efforts and intelligence, not replace it.

The graph of ups and downs is about finances, business income, and general money matters. Keep in mind that the dips are the best times for other business and personal activities (like vacation time) including restocking, expansion and change in methods of operation and other support activities to improve financial positions in the next upturn. And I am convinced that by paying attention to the trends you will hone and improve your own intuitive ability to make good choices about your business in a positive and consistent way.

January

All in all the first month of this year is mostly upbeat with a brief slow down at the first of the month; a good time for setting up some goals and plans for the future. The slump around 18th and is short lived and may be a chance to catch your breath after about 10 days of excellent, fast-paced and profitable transactions. That period is also an excellent time for making very successful changes and particularly for talking through problems and needed adjustments, or for taking advantage of sudden windfalls. This is a good month for quick and effective thinking and planning, but not wonderful for implementation until the end of the month when one of the best periods of this year takes form. If you are prepared, the last few days of this month can be excellent in every way.
